As many of you know, with 4 children in baton and dance, I have tried to find ways to save money on supplies, as these can add up quickly. My most recent shopping trip for baton shoes had me in tears because they have raised the prices AGAIN. By becoming a vendor, I have been able to offset the cost of many items both for myself and for the studio. Most recently, I have entered a partnership with Starline Baton company, which carries all of the supplies we frequently go on a scavenger hunt for or order online at high prices. I am able to extend to you a 10% discount on products over $10 plus free shipping and no tax (I pay it all for you) at starlinebaton.com. This site carries EVERYTHING we use plus tons more. I compared it with the music store we often go to for supplies and it comes out to less, plus the convenience of being hand-delivered to you. The site has so many cute novelty items and jewelry in addition to innovative products like LED light batons, embroidered bags, and real baton grip tape that has become impossible to find anywhere else.

I am going to place a bulk order by April 15th with no minimums and will be able to place single orders over $100 at any time after that (double-checking to make sure I am offsetting the shipping minimums and taxes). Take a look at the site and write down your specific order below, along with payment made out to Tear Down Studio. Don't forget to take 10% off items over $10. For example, the cougars are listed as $42.95 (I just paid $44 and some change at the music store) and you will get them for $38.66 with no tax or shipping added because I have included them in the price with the discount ($34 for the shoes, $2.71 sales tax and $1.95 shipping). I have attached some of the most frequently used items as a reference and pricing comparison.

Please email me at sales@teardownstudio.com with any questions you have or to double check pricing before submitting your payment. We are also able to accept credit cards through Paypal, but have to charge a 3% convenience fee since that is what we incur to use it. To bill through Paypal, you need to provide your email address, submit your order either through email or on paper, and we will invoice you. We can also email you a spreadsheet that will do the calculations for you, if you would prefer
